This brochure is issued free of charge as part of the public relations work of the Bavarian Government. It may not be used by political parties, campaigners or electoral helpers as advertising material for electoral campaigning in a period of five months ahead of elections. This applies to all regional, national, local and European elections. During this period of time, particularly the distribution at election rallies, at information stands of parties, as well as inserting, imprinting or affixing partypolitical information or campaign material to the brochure will constitute misuse. The brochure shall not be passed on to third parties for use as election campaign material. Regardless of the timing in relation to elections, this brochure may not be used in a way that could be interpreted as support by the German Federal Government for individual political groups. Political parties are allowed to use this brochure for the information of their own members. When publicising parts or the whole of this brochure it should be referenced and a copy of the publication should be sent to the StMUGV. The brochure is copyrighted, all rights are reserved. The brochure is issued free of charge, any distribution against payment is prohibited. Great care has been taken in the development of this brochure. Nevertheless, no responsibility can be taken for the correctness and completeness of its content.

Important advice:
safe and healthy sleeping
for your baby

Infants need a lot of sleep. In the first few months they sleep on average 16 to 19 hours a day. At three months they still need around 13 to 15 hours a day. We would like to provide you with the information you need in order to create an optimal sleeping environment for your baby.

In a baby's first year of life cot death during sleep can occur. Fortunately, this happens very rarely. Nevertheless, there are still babies dying of cot death in Germany.

A few simple precautions can help to reduce the risk for your child to a minimum. The recommendations overleaf are scientifically approved and well tested in practice.

Your doctor or your midwife will be pleased to provide further assistance.

We'd like to wish you happiness and a lot of joy with your child!

On the back

Place your baby on its back to sleep from the very beginning – even for daytime naps. This is the most important precaution you can take for a safe sleep for your baby.

In a sleeping bag

Baby sleeping bags are safer than blankets (your baby cannot kick them off or pull them over its head). When buying a sleeping bag, you should take care that it is not too big for your baby. The neckline should not be bigger than your baby's head. In specialist baby stores you can find special sleeping bags for newborns.

In a cot in the parents' bedroom

In its first year of life your baby should sleep in a cot in your bedroom.

Not too hot

Keep the bedroom at a temperature of not more than 18 °C (65 °F) – even during winter. If your baby feels sweaty around its neck, its sleeping environment is too warm.

Smokefree

Smoking in pregnancy and after birth puts your baby at an increased risk of illness as well as cot death. Don't smoke in the house and don't smoke in the presence of your baby.

Breastfeeding is good for your baby

If possible you should breastfeed your baby for six months. This is good for its general health and strengthens its immune system.

Please take care that your baby cannot get stuck under bedding, baby nests or cuddly toys.
